Dear Parents

Greetings from Sarvottam!

Hope you are all doing well and are AT HOME.

These are extremely testing times for all of us. But as it is said- Tough times last, but tough people last longer...

We shall all fight this together and emerge victorious.

I would have loved to meet and discuss our new ventures and programs with you in a formal Orientation Program like always, but this may not be possible at this time. However, we can still meet online.

We are planning online Parent Orientations from Monday onwards. Parents will be divided into groups and shared meeting IDs as large numbers cannot be taken at once. We have already formed WhatsApp groups according to the class and section. The details will be shared on the groups from here on.

Kindly download Zoom App on your device (laptop/desktop preferred. Can be done on mobile too) for the session.

Teachers are in the process of preparing online modules and we are trying to get the e-books for the curriculum prescribed. Once we get these, formal learning can begin, this should be anytime around April 3, 2020. Instructions on how these classes will be done and what all is required will be shared soon.

I am also sharing a message with you. Its slightly a long one but can be of immense help. Do go through it. It will help. I will be in touch with you all always. My number and email are being shared. I prefer a message to a call.

Desperate times require desperate measures. More than that they require determination and will power. Today we need to be all of these and cautious for ourselves and others. Stay positive and optimistic, as this too shall pass.

Looking forward to seeing you online...

Stay home, stay calm and stay safe

Warm regards

Dr Priyanka Mehta
